Readers might like to know that the coming year will place even more emphasis on what we mostly take for granted: being human.

So much for AI There are, sadly, plenty of people ready to consider artificially created things equivalent or even better than the God•Goddess created original. These are people who gleefully adopt every trinket that demonic science creates for their every "convenience" without thinking about the consequences.* They are most likely to be scientifically illiterate and content to remain that way, just using what science produces, thinking themselves "smart" because they use "smart" appliances.

Aside: I do like quite a bit of technology myself, but I evaluate everything for its health and environmental impact, its quality, its toxicity, where it was made and what company made it. If I don't like dealing with a particular company, e.g., Jeff Bezos' Amazon, I don't buy (except as a last resort). I won't buy any "smart" appliance and don't use a microwave oven. (We had to fight to opt out of smart meters and have to pay extra for the privilege of avoiding a higher dose of EM radiation).* I try to buy local and American-made where possible, but that's pretty hard, as most local merchants don't or won't stock the kinds of products we want to buy. Alas. ◇

Sorry - it's not "convenient" to be microwaved to death, poisoned to death, jabbed to death, or see the extinction crisis accelerate "for our convenience," wiping out forests, animals, plants and so forth just so we can wipe (fill in the blank); to walk among people who only stare into their dead-eye box" and not see what's happening around them – who avoid making eye contact with other people, and so on. "It jus' ain't human."

2023 Mission: Disarm those who wish us harm This New Year issue continues the

Note to readers – Apologies for the delay

Thanks for your patience. As with some New Year issues I've published over these past 22 years, I got an urge to make some changes, especially on the cover; then decided to do some format tweaking. Didn't stop there: I put in a "legend" (p. 16) to depict and explain certain chart symbols of some of the "new" outer planets. Lots of dithering about content (replacing, adding articles that ended up on the "cutting floor," so to speak). Then there

"Why we fight" theme, and lists countries pushing for planet and human annihilation, and are part of the G20 nations. And let's not forget that other extinction forum, the "climate policy group," the CO27, who have plans to digitally track every person and catalog every single thing they do, while shutting down farms "violating" their incredibly stupid (or just evil) ideas about CO2, and how they mean to tame it. (Do I have to say it – no farms no food? Just see what they're doing to Belgian farmers!)

By what right... do they do these things? Who (or what) is allowing them to do this? Good question. Certainly not us (the "silent majority"), that's for sure. Who then? I think a good place to look is the shadow cast by the satanic Freemason cabal, proposals pushed by their in-house technocratic sycophants and globalist partners. (Those pushing the hardest are the most bought and paid for.)

When we take the time to analyze all this, we see that it's pretty obvious: they just took the power – ever working behind "closed doors," without scrutiny, transparency or the critical eye of the Fourth Estate (a free and independent Press). A coup, in other words.

Legal Smeagle Politicians, don't forget, are just hired hands, doing what they are told, following "the script." The whole sham election thing is a show "they" put on for distraction purposes every few years. ("Pick a card, any card..." and it will be the one pre-chosen by the controllers.) "Laws" coming out of such a hat don't serve we-the-people. They are designed to serve those who put a given politician into office – and why very little good comes out of WDC [except social security checks]. There are a handful of exceptions, of course, but not many of those, since loopholes in every law are constructed as "back doors" to defeat well-intentioned laws. Kind of like "law hackers," kin to computer programmers, who insert computer code are the typical gremlins lurking in programs ("gotchas"); equipment balking; running out of the right weight paper just before printing (yikes!).

Confession: I didn't want to use the excuse of retrograde Mars and Mercury, but these slow planets particularly affected my output – considering I have natal Mars in Gemini and a lot of "mutable*" planets (planets in mutable signs). Also, Neptune transiting Pisces (part of the mutable pattern) can and does impair clear thinking...

as "back doors" into their programs so they may be accessed at any time, typically without being detected.

A New Eden – or Techno-hell A living, vital world – or for those who may have read any of the Dune novels (by Frank Herbert) or seen movies derived from them – another Giedi Prime (pronounced something like JayDi Prime) – a paved over, machine-intensive, artificial-everything world controlled by a sadistic, malignant ruling elite (House of Harkonnen). Sound familiar?

Mission of the Human Squad Meanwhile let's see how the corporate pustules break out. Our mission, as the Human Squad, must be to resist and find as many ways as possible to sabotage their plans. The first is simply being mindful of how you may be being played by this satanic cult.

Planetary energies will be supportive of the Rugged Individual*. So, during this transition time, Standing Tall in that trait should be helpful. When we've cleaned the pests out of the Corral, we can celebrate a well-earned victory.

We live together on "one world," but don't act like it. That's the other shoe dropping. Our Rugged Individual is still part of the crowd living on this "one world," but is often indifferent to the idea that he has company and must learn to Share. Hopefully, "he" will want everyone to be treated as he would himself like to be treated.

* Planet changes are on the way, and some coverage of these will be mentioned in this issue.
 The Share group has been making this case for several decades now, in disclosing the messages of Maitreya.

So, another bucking bronco year is in store for us, but hang on and "buck" the trends of submission, fearfulness and capitulation.

Roll up your sleeves: stay active; stay engaged; and whatever may come, let your heart inform your mind. Be fearless, and be of Good Cheer in this New Year.

A personally agonizing example of the "molasses effect," (as in trying to swim in) ... All of which caused an extra delay in completing, printing and mailing this New Year issue. | Note: I was tempted to make the type bigger, but that really would require a lot more text cutting than I wanted to do. Maybe someday.

I hope you'll enjoy the finished product.

2023 – a 7 year: Reflection, (then Planning, then Action)

Image of chakras from Internet source; background by editor.

As I like to do at the beginning of a new year, I do a little number sketch about the significance of the resultant number or root number for the year, in this case 2-0-2-3.

We've seen the result (in hindsight) of what transpired for 2022, a 6 year. If your year wasn't up to par, perhaps it had to do with problematic relationships within the family, the larger family of acquaintances, associates, and/or resources. Or a sense of imbalance. Or a sense of being deprived. These seem to be particularly relevant to the number 6.

So, as we think ahead about the number 7, think about greater harmonies possible through contemplation of one of the special numbers of perfection. A combination of 3+4: trinity plus stability or rootedness. Setting these numbers as objects together, with 4 on the bottom and 3 on the top we get a basic pyramidal structure.

Those 7's Esoterically, we have the 7 Rays (mentioned in previous Pathfinder issues); 7 basic musical tones plus 1 (doh, re, mi, fa, sol, la, ti... then another 'doh' starts a new series, 7+1 = an octave); 7 major celestial bodies not counting Earth itself (Sun, Mercury, Venus, Moon, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn); 7 basic chakras (see graphic). There are other chakras, but most of us haven't accessed them due to a necessary vibrational shift upward. Keep trying. The planetary chakra is open (above the crown chakra)...

2023 – Year of the Water Cat (Jan. 22, 2023)

© 2022 by Rose A. Jenkins, editor/

The Chinese apparently changed this totem animal (the cat) for a rabbit. Don't get me wrong! I love bunnies. Cute, soft, cuddley, sweet. But I go by experience, and what I've experienced with these folks is not exactly that. They're much tougher than bunnies, e.g., would you call Jet Li (water cat), martial arts master who appeared in "Hero" and "Fearless" a soft, cuddley guy? No way. Then there is Kurt Russell (metal cat), Big Trouble in Little China, "Escape from New York"; Clint Walker, (fire cat) the hero of the Western series, "Cheyenne," "Bounty Man"; William Shatner (earth cat), "Captain of the Starship Enterprise, the Star Trek series)

And, I'm sure there are others of this tribe who contradict the soft, cuddley characterization. To my observational skills, they're more like the previous Oriental sign of the Tiger, but more diplomatic than the Tiger (never known for its diplomatic skills), and less eager for confrontational forays, nor as impetuous. Cats are more inclined to listen to different points of view (before pouncing upon what seems to be the best approach). So, overall, I think "Cat" suits this tribe better than "Rabbit," hence my selection of the above image for this year.

Aside: I don't know why the Chinese turned this sign inside out, or so it appears to me, but I respectfully disagree with their

Planetary changes ahead —

Astrological Overview for 2023

© 2022 Joan Butler (Cassandra)
Article reprinted with author's permission.
Some modification. Edited for brevity, clarity and/or flow. Editor's comments, etc. in square brackets.

As the clock chimes 2023, we welcome a new year with an astrological emphasis on the power of the individual. Restart self-assertion. This year the adage, 'be the change you want to be in the world' has never been clearer. 2023 is the year of personal authenticity. The planetary shifts trigger a way to personal authenticity through resource management and self-esteem, healing the inner child, and a commitment to one's spiritual path. Because Pluto tiptoes into Aquarius for the first time in 268 years, we will also be evaluating how we each connect with our local tribe and how we might contribute to the world at large. ...

Aries' Themes in Spades The year begins with the planet of plenty, Jupiter in Aries*. Jupiter expands wherever it transits. Jupiter in Aries emphasizes the concept of the individual, the "I Am" energy writ large. This once-every-twelve-year cycle helps each of us clarify our unique identity. The ruler of Aries, Mars, also is active as the year unfolds as it continues its long transit in Gemini, still retrograde. This expanded emphasis on Aries and its ruler in the sign of 'thinking' suggests a focus on our personal agenda. We may have contradictory goals; such is the retrograde affect. Once Mars stations direct, on Jan. 12th, clearer thinking prevails.

Too much 'me energy' can degenerate into narcissistic behavior, that resembles the action of a spoiled child. 2023 offers two Aries themes which can neutralize a too heavy an emphasis on the self. The first is when Jupiter in Aries catches up with the asteroid Chiron, the "wounded healer," [quotes added] from January through May, peaking on March 11th when it conjuncts Jupiter.

Editor's comment: Chiron's placement in Aries highlights where we need to review the causes of pain and suffering by being "out front," and just accept that sometimes we must "do what we have to do" no matter the condemnation or criticism of others, and "go it alone," even if that doesn't feel very good. Sometimes it's a problem with failing to accept the challenge of being an Individual (not part of the "safety in numbers" crowd). ♡

The dance of Jupiter with Chiron offers us to do some deep healing, including inner child work, along with forgiveness of self and others. This combination can transform self-absorption into the actualized self.

The second Aries theme expresses through the nodal shift into the polarity of decision that must have been made some time in the remote past. Perhaps it had something to do with the appearance of the Moon at some point, you know, like, "Oh, look! There's a rabbit in the moon!" (In various cultures Moon and Rabbit are often paired.) Anyway, there's room for speculation. ♡

Water Cat Traits The water element tends to make these cats want to seek calmer waters (so to speak), to have more time to dream, which they're quite fond of. But don't forget

Aries-Libra. 2023 will be the first time in nearly 19 years – since late Dec. 2004 – that the north node will transit Aries. It's a call to embrace a new identity for the self, free from the expectations or projections of others.

The effect of the nodal energies is particularly [seen through the lens of] the solar and lunar eclipses. The first of the Aries eclipses occurs on April 20th, at the 29th degree of Aries [see other eclipse dates below]. — As a fire sign, Aries responds best to visualization. Use this first of the Aries eclipses to hold a vision of your best self. Perhaps put together a vision board with images of you posed in your most vital, ideal light.

Eclipse dates, 2023

- Apr 20, Solar Eclipse, N. Node, 29 Aries 50 (find what you seek in yourself);
- May 5, Lunar Eclipse, 14 Scorpio 58 (heal and release fear over security);
- Oct 14, Solar Eclipse, S. Node, 21 Libra 8 (know when to let others lead);
- Oct 28 Lunar Eclipse, 5 Taurus 9 (heal and release power and manipulation games).

At its best, Aries energy reflects leadership, strength, self-confidence, spontaneity, innovation and courage. The process of "working on ourselves" takes courage – courage to see ourselves as we are. 2023 offers us an opportunity to have a true relationship with our inner self, so we may more successfully navigate our lives with authenticity.

* Editor's note: Jupiter's movement through Aries is pretty quick. It entered Aries on Dec. 21, 2022 and exits on May 17, 2023 when it moves into Taurus. Jupiter retrogrades in Taurus on Sep. 4, 2023.

Other planet changes on the horizon

*Pluto, the great transformer has been moving through Capricorn, the sign of [social and corporate] structure and authority since 2008. Capricorn themes such as government, business, and social structure have been systematically rebooted from the inside out over these 15 years, especially during the past two years. Pluto in Capricorn has revealed the shadow of manipulation from leaders on top of the proverbial societal mountain. Trust in our collective institutions has never been lower according to a 2022 Gallup Poll. (See forbes.com/sites/madelinehalpert/2022/07/05/trust-in-us-institutions-hits-record-low-poll-finds/). As we anticipate the Pluto ingress into Aquarius, the first blush which is happening in 2023, the collective landscape will change.

Since Pluto reflects the essential nature of power, when it transits in Aquarius, we will see the focus of power shift from that of top-down (Capricorn) to a system of bottom-up col-* water, once ruffled, can produce tsunamis. Meanwhile, they aim for better flowing energy.

Anyway, this year try to find areas in our lives that provide a calm center, for reflection, repose, retreat to recharge our batteries (whenever we can manage it), and a respite from the storms that come, either in nature or through the actions of others.

Best Traits: reflective, diplomatic, hospitable.

Worst Traits: indecisive, conformist, cruel. ■

5 Science-Backed Wound Healers Found in Nature

The natural biological process that occurs in your body to heal a wound is as incredible as it is complex. Four precise phases – hemostasis, inflammation, proliferation and remodeling – must occur in the proper sequence and with the correct timing for the wound to heal successfully. [But so] many factors may interfere with this process that impaired wound healing is common place.

During hemostasis, blood vessels are constricted and platelets aggregated to stop bleeding. The inflammatory stage follows, which includes an influx of inflammatory cells that release mediators and cytokines to trigger the formation of new blood vessels (angiogenesis), blood clotting and re-epithelialization (formation of new epithelium), which continues into the proliferative phase. [The proliferative phase] can last for several weeks and includes the formation of granulation tissue, a key part of wound healing. The last phase, remodeling, begins about three weeks after the initial wound and may last up to one year while the wound fully heals – assuming the process works as it should.

What interferes with wound healing? Age, stress, smoking, nutrition, alcohol intake, medications and health conditions like diabetes and obesity may interfere with the wound healing process. It's estimated that nearly 2.5% of the US population have chronic wounds that won't heal. [Other underlying health conditions like high blood pressure and kidney disease are also] associated with chronic nonhealing wounds; in these cases, addressing the health issue will help to resolve the wound.

[Meanwhile], there are many natural compounds that also lend support to wound healing, some of which you may have in your home right now.

Nature's Top Wound Healers

1. Honey ... is a broad-spectrum antibacterial agent, lowers prostaglandin* levels while elevating nitric oxide end products, processes that help explain honey's wound-healing powers. [Prostaglandins are hormone-like substances derived from various fatty acids that regulate blood pressure, muscle contraction.*]

In a study of critically ill children with pressure injuries, those treated with Manuka honey were 1.9 times more likely to have their wound completely healed than those who received only standard care.

Those treated with honey also had a shorter time to complete healing – seven days for the honey group versus nine days for standard care – with no allergic reac-

Gold, Precious Inside and Out

Colloidal Gold: Health Benefits and more, Part 1

Editor's foreword: Although many online sources of information about the origin of the element AU, gold, atomic number 79, say that gold "came from outer space," I wonder why and how it turns up in our bodies "naturally," and typically associated with water and what was once water (deserts). For this topic and much of what include in Pathfinder I adapt from online sources (accredited, of course). With such sources and my own intuition and knowledge, I weave into a more in-depth picture. ... See related article on gold, pg 14.

Alchemy It has been the goal of alchemists throughout history to transform by chemical and magical, consciousness-infused processes, to create gold or "transmute base metals" into gold. My process is a bit of alchemy itself: I "inhale" material, select material from various sources, reach inside, digest them, and pull various themes out, transform them, and hope that the result will be "gold" for my readers. :)

Suggested reading Laurence Gardner's book, "Lost Secrets of the Sacred Ark," The mysterious properties of gold are, frankly, mind-blowing. Alchemists knew something that "modern science" is just finding out. ♦

Colloidal Gold's Health Benefits

The first time I learned about colloidal gold was in the spring of 1996, and an entertaining meeting with the manufacturer followed shortly thereafter.

I discovered an intriguing line of colloidal products at a holistic pet store in the San Fernando Valley, Calif. while buying supplements for my dog. It was one of the only brands of colloidal gold, silver, and platinum on the market in those days.

After speaking to the pet store owner about the benefits of colloidal products, I ended up buying a large bottle of silver and gold, eager to test them on my dog, tions or secondary bacterial infections noted.

2. Aloe Vera With anti-inflammatory, anti-ulcer, antibacterial and antifungal properties, aloe vera's role in wound healing is well established. The aloe compound aloesin affects the inflammation, proliferation and remodeling wound healing phases and accelerated wound closure rates in animal studies. Aloe vera gel was also effective for treating diabetic ulcers and ... cesarean wound healing. When researchers tried a mixture of aloe vera gel and aloe vera flower, [there were] significant synergistic wound healing effects. Even taking aloe vera orally led to accelerated wound healing compared to no treatment in a study on rats.

3. Kiwi fruit ... has antibacterial pro-angiogenic (blood vessel forming) properties, along with proteolytic enzymes. In a pilot study of 37 people with neuropathic diabetic foot ulcers, treatment with kiwi extract twice daily for 21 days led to significantly higher amounts of collagen and granulation tissues compared to the control group.

Actinidin a protein-dissolving enzyme in kiwi was also found to improve "different aspects of the wound healing process." Similar benefits of kiwi extract were found [to aid people] with bedsores, while kiwi wound dressings for 10 days also led to better healing than normal saline irrigation for cutaneous wounds.

4. Curcumin ... is an active compound in the spice turmeric, reduces inflammation, protects against oxidative stress and modulates phase II detoxification enzymes. It's believed that curcumin has skin regeneration and wound healing potential... compared to the control group in an animal study. Turmeric gel extract [has been shown to lead] to faster wound healing when applied topically. ...

5. L-Arginine* ... also known as simply arginine, is an amino acid that your body uses to help produce proteins. In your body, arginine is converted to nitric oxide, which helps widen blood vessels, [with arginine supplementation leading to improved blood flow to the limbs in humans as well as stimulating the release of growth hormone and insulin-like growth factor], which promote wound healing. [High L-Arginine foods are meat, fish poultry, dairy, nuts, spirulina and quite a few veggies and fruits.*]

In addition to supporting healing of cutaneous [skin] wounds, arginine may also improve the healing of fractures and impaired wounds caused by diabetes or those due to hemorrhage and trauma. One study also revealed that the wound-healing benefits of arginine may be further boosted by simultaneous consumption of omega-3 fats.

Beyond dietary and supplement measures, support wound healing by engaging in healthy activities like exercise, getting quality sleep each night and reducing stress. Engaging in mindfulness programs may be beneficial for wound healing, showing that you can best promote your body's healing potential via methods that support your overall physical and mental health. [ St. John's Wort should also prove helpful in stress relief.*] ■

Besides the surveillance issues I have briefly touched upon in recent articles, what other potential consequences are there for launching so many satellites? ... □

Editor’s foreword: Many readers are cell-phone users. I’m hoping this and other articles appearing in Pathfinder about the DNA damage being caused by these things and the fact that the use of them is spurring the destruction of the ozone layer (by virtue of “launch gasses and burning through the upper atmosphere”) and the EM frequency havoc being wrought through the use of them. Take responsibility for what’s happening. For your sake and the rest of us.

Ecocide from Space

On the evening of Thursday, Dec. 8, 2022, OneWeb launched 40 satellites from Cape Canaveral, Fla., bringing the total number of active satellites in orbit around the Earth to more than 7,000. These cell towers in space are altering the electromagnetic environment of the entire planet and are debilitating and exterminating all life on it.

Even the first fleet of 28 military satellites launched by the US caused a worldwide pandemic of influenza* when they became operational on June 13, 1968. The Hong Kong flu began in June 1968,* lasted through April 1970, and killed up to four million people worldwide.

*Editor’s note: Coincidence or not, the sequence did happen. Coincidences, as Rex Stout’s Nero Wolfe, “Greatest detective in the world,” always says, must be suspect. Besides, those doing the launching are also likely working with the NWO people promoting WEF, G5 and other world-destroying activities. Karma on the hoff. ◇

To understand why requires a proper understanding of our connection to the universe and what it is that really gives us life and health, and makes our bodies move. In a sense... invisible strings connect us to heaven and earth, strings that resonate at the age-old frequencies of the biosphere in which we live, the space between Earth and Sky ... And when we modulate and pulsate those strings at random from thousands of locations in space, we change the beautiful music of the earthly orchestra into a discordant chaos that scatters bodies all over the world, helpless before it.

On March 24-25, 2021, the chaos was brought to a new level, that the world now accepts as normal. In that 24-hour period, a record 96 satellites were launched into space on a single day – 60 by SpaceX [Ed’s: Elon Tesla’s company] and 36 by OneWeb and on the same day SpaceX dramatically increased the speed of its satellite internet connections.

On that day, [there were people all over the world who had difficulty sleeping, were weak and exhausted, had muscle spasms, and hurt and itched all over, especially in their feet and legs. They reported skin rashes, were dizzy and nauseous, and had stomach aches and diarrhea; ringing in their ears was amplified; eyes were inflamed, and their vision worsened. Other symptoms of this EM bombardment included heart arrhythmias, blood pressure went up; some had nosebleeds, or coughed up blood.] They were anxious, depressed or suicidal, and irritable. Their cats, dogs, chickens, goats and cows were sick at the same time. [Ed’s: Can’t verify these kinds of reactions because they’re typically unreported.]

My newsletter of April 15, 2021, Survey Results, quoted from some of the thousand letters I received from people young and old, from people who called themselves electrosensitive and from people who did not, from people who had no wireless technology and from people who had smart meters and 5G antennas outside their homes and who emailed me from their cell phones, all reporting the same experiences... on March 24 or 25, 2021 and had trouble sleeping.* The reports came from 42 states and 50 countries. [Note: The author cites other kinds of events that occurred around the time of the 96 satellite launch he mentions.] ...

*Editor’s comment: Cell phones? Perhaps they should consciously make the decision to turn them off, or send them back to their makers to help save the planet. Incidentally, my Rosicrucian Ephemerides (2000–2100) for those dates show a close square between Mercury in Pisces and Mars in Gemini, as well as that square between Saturn in Aquarius and Uranus in Taurus. ◇

Photographs of hundreds of worms, and of hundreds of sheep, moving silently in perfect spirals, were taken on March 25 and March 26. ... [Ed’s: I didn’t search for this, but it seems possible given the sensitivity of animal life, including our own, to changes in the EM environment.]

[On Dec. 8, 2022, the day OneWeb launched satellites that will expand its coverage across the US, Europe, the Middle East and Asia, I experienced] and heard from some other people both locally and far away that the pains and debilities from which we have been suffering at some level for the past 20 months suddenly intensified. I was almost crippled for three days. ...

Although SpaceX and OneWeb are ... building the largest fleets of Earth-destroying satellites, they are far from the only entities launching them. The 7,000 satellites presently operating were launched by governments or private companies [and include just about every nation from the G20, CO27, G7, NATO, UN members. For a listing of the “guilty” countries, visit Fristenberg’s site, cellphonetaskforce.org.] ...

European IRIS Satellites The European Union just got into the act with its own program

“These cell towers in space are altering the electromagnetic environment of the entire planet and are debilitating and exterminating all life on it.”

“...invisible strings connect us to heaven and earth, strings that resonate at the age-old frequencies of the biosphere ... And when we modulate and pulsate those strings at random from thousands of locations in space, we change the beautiful music of the earthly orchestra into a discordant chaos that scatters bodies all over the world...”

“... a planned fleet of 243 Bluebird satellites designed to connect directly with people’s existing mobile phones*, no matter where on Earth they may be located. The size of its solar array – 64 square meters – is causing alarm among astronomers because it is as bright as the brightest stars during the hours after sunset and before sunrise.”

Arthur Fristenberg (Cellular Phone Task Force): “... Every person, every animal, and every plant should have the right to drink from the Earth’s natural frequencies, and not be bombarded with artificial radiation from space.”

to provide high-speed broadband from space to all of Europe and Africa. On Dec. 5, 2022, the Council of the EU and the European Parliament reached a provisional agreement to launch 170 new satellites called Infrastructure for Resilience, Interconnection and Security (IRIS).

From EU’s Space Program (EUSPA) website:

This new component of the EU Space Programme will put an end to dead zones in Europe as well as the whole of Africa using the constellation’s North-South orbits through a resilient and ultra-secure* space and ground-based system... [*Ed’s: Yeah, ultra-secure from solar storms, etc. Secure, yeah. Ultra-dead, yeah.]

AST SpaceMobile On Sep. 10, 2022, AST SpaceMobile launched the largest, and probably the most powerful, commercial communications array ever put into space. It is the first of a planned fleet of 243 Bluebird satellites designed to connect directly with people’s existing mobile phones*, no matter where on Earth they may be located. The size of its solar array – 64 square meters – is causing alarm among astronomers because it is as bright as the brightest stars during the hours after sunset and before sunrise.

So far, AST SpaceMobile is working with RakutenMobile, AT&T, Bell Canada, Telecom Argentina, Africell, Liberty Latin America and Orange, for a potential customer base of 1.8 billion mobile phone subscribers. [Ed’s: Another 1.8 billion numbskulls.]

The immensely powerful signals from the Bluebird satellites are also worrying radio astronomers... The effective radiated power of each satellite, according to AST’s filings with the FCC, will be up to 83 million watts, and the exposure level at the surface of the earth from such beams, according to my calculations, will be up to 3 nanowatts per square centimeter, which is 100 times more radiation than what I am exposed to in my house in Santa Fe from the nearest cell towers.

Abel Avellan, CEO of AST SpaceMobile:

Every person should have the right* to access cellular broadband, regardless of where they live or work. Our goal is to close the connectivity gaps that negatively impact billions of lives around the world.

*Editor’s comment: Like every person has the “right” to stick their head into a microwave oven and press “popcorn” for the best microwaved brain. But these guys aren’t giving you the choice: They’re putting your head in the microwave oven without your consent. Is this stupidity the wall humanity is hitting at the speed of night?

Mr. Avellan, [we beg to differ]! Every person, every animal, and every plant should have the right to drink from the Earth’s natural frequencies, and not to be bombarded with artificial radiation from space.

Space debris expert: Orbits will be lost - and people will die ... Up until about a decade ago, an average of 80 to 100 satellites per year were launched into varying orbits. Some reentered Earth’s atmosphere quickly, while others will remain in orbit for decades. ... In the last five years, driven largely by the rise of communications networks such as SpaceX’s Starlink [Elon Musk’s baby] and a proliferation of small satellites, the number of objects launched into space has increased dramatically.

- ◆ 2017 [per] UN’s Office for Outer Space Affairs, annual number exceeded 300.
- ◆ 2020, the annual number of objects launched exceeded 1,000.
- ◆ 2022, the total surpassed 2,000 ...

...with more broadband networks like Amazon’s Project Kuiper on the way.

This radically increasing number of satellites, most of which are orbiting within 1,000 km of the Earth’s surface*, comes as low-Earth orbit is more cluttered with debris than ever.

*Editor’s note: Which makes them very vulnerable to solar storms capable of knocking lots of these things out of their low-Earth orbits, where they will fall like bombs.

- ▼ Dec? 2022 – [Recently], a Chinese “Long March 6A” [quotes added] rocket’s upper stage unexpectedly broke apart after delivering its payload into orbit. There are now more than 300 pieces of trackable debris at an altitude from 500 to 1,000 km. ...

Plumbing ancient mysteries...

Col. James Churchward (briefly) & Mu, “Motherland of Man”

Edgar Cayce: “If you want to learn about Mu or Lemuria consult Churchward.”
“...fragile documents described an ancient seafaring civilization in the Pacific Ocean. Churchward referred to the extensive civilization as the Motherland of Mu.”

Editor's foreword and basic bio on James Churchward (b. Feb. 27, 1851, d. Jan. 4, 1936): Churchward was born in Devonshire, Eng. During his life, he worked to develop the hypothesis that there was an ancient Mother-land for mankind in the Pacific: Lemuria or Mu. Images of ocean floor typographies of the Pacific Ocean, Antarctic ocean floor, the Indian Ocean floor and the fragments in orbit [which NASA's Int'l Space Station has to dodge]...

Scientists and engineers estimate that there are hundreds of thousands of pieces of orbital debris about the size of a blueberry that cannot be tracked. Given their velocities of many times the speed of sound, these small objects have the kinetic energy of a falling anvil. Then there are tens of thousands of pieces of trackable debris the size of a softball or larger that have the kinetic energy of a large bomb. While some of this debris gets dragged down into Earth's atmosphere and burns up [we] are rapidly creating more of it ... ■

Editor's postscript: From all of the above, I don't see any responsible governments on Earth at the present time. Their authority to make unilateral decisions must be rescinded, and perpetrators punished or brought to account. We invite our space brothers and benign others for assistance – NOW. ◇

Edgar Cayce mentioned Lemuria in 45 readings, but when he was asked for details he usually replied: “If you want to learn about Mu or Lemuria consult Churchward.”

Col. James Churchward (1851-1936) was a British engineer who had studied at Oxford. As a soldier he was stationed in India where he became close friends with an elderly monk from a nearby temple. Eventually, Churchward and the monk worked on deciphering sacred documents that had been carefully hidden for thousands of years in secret archives in a nearby temple. They were written in an ancient script called Nacaal which the elderly monk was able to decipher. The fragile documents described an ancient seafaring civilization in the Pacific Ocean. Churchward referred to the extensive civilization as the Motherland of Mu. He was so intrigued by what he read that he determined to learn more. The monk said other tablets about Mu were in Burma, India and Tibet.

Churchward spent most of the rest of his life researching and traveling: searching ... monasteries in eastern Asia, on Pacific Islands, Central America, and in the southeastern US. When Churchward needed money to finance his research and travels, he came to [the US] and, using his engineering skills, invented [NCV] steel which was an extremely hard almost impenetrable alloy. He sold it to the US government who used it for helmets [and for other armor-plating purposes] during World War 1.* The $1¼ million he earned enabled him to continue his research and travel and eventually write five books: “The Lost Continent of Mu,” “Sacred Symbols of Mu,” “Cosmic Sources as They Were Taught in Mu,” “The Children of Mu,” “Second Book of the Cosmic

Sources of Mu.” □

- ² Patent infringement case against Carnegie steel for $6M per nytimes.com (ref. no longer accessible).

[Churchward's work offers confirmations of what Cayce said about Lemuria in his readings. He compiled and compared information from many hundreds of sources – inscriptions, ancient writings, legends etc. – from all around the world].

Editor's comment: Legendary vanished continents like Mu/Lemuria are frequently discounted by academe who prefer the version of prehistory compressed into the Judeo-Christian narrative, i.e., biblically “pure,” or, “If it ain't in the Bible, it ain't so.” Keeping an open mind about what turns up in our searches is key. ◇

More on James Churchward

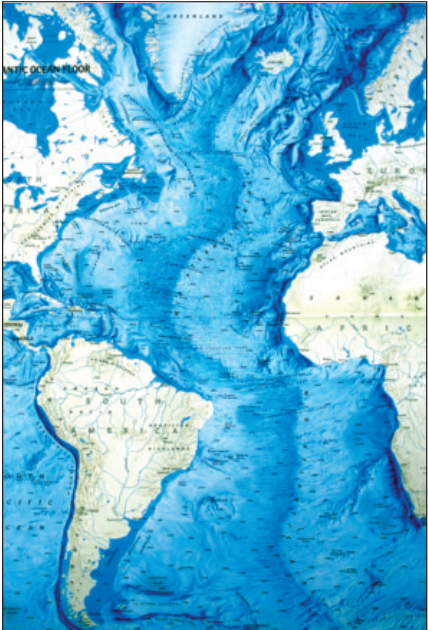

Material obtained from liquisearch.com/james_churchward. Abridged, etc.

JAMES CHURCHWARD ... is best known as a British-born occult writer. However, he was also a patented inventor, engineer, and expert fisherman, [and] a tea planter in Sri Lanka before coming to the US in the 1890s. ... After a patent-infringement settlement in 1914, [see footnotes] James retired to his 7+ acre estate on Lake Wononsko-pomuc in Lakeville, Conn. ...

Putting the pieces together In 1926, at the age of 75, he published “The Lost Continent of Mu: Motherland of Man,” which he claimed proved the existence of a lost continent, called Mu, in the Pacific Ocean. ■

Editor's postscript –

Although the outlines of the continent described by Churchward differs from satellite imagery seen in the ocean floor images (this page), it's clear that huge disruptions occurred in the Pacific, and elsewhere around our battered, beautiful world. And not just from “plate movements.” Afterall, something activated these plate movements, and seers like Cayce gave us sound guidance about how these land masses came to be so broken into plates, etc. There are so many peculiar features in these maps that it's hard to single any one out, but one of the thoughts that came to me when I saw the Indian ocean underwater features was that it seemed like the Indian subcontinent was on some kind of conveyor belt(?) as it seemed to be driven under the Eurasian supercontinent, pushing up the Himalayas and isolating the Gobi sea (subsequently, the Gobi desert) and that very ancient culture. ❖

#20 is Judgement. Basically this is people jumping their boxes. That’s MY take on what is going on here. All these people were told the lids on their boxes weigh tons and tons. They can never get out. Don’t even try.

One day the people decide to use their own “Judgement,” and BOOM! They find out the lids are made of Styrofoam!

#2 is the High Priestess. The card of great spiritual knowledge.

Elsie speaking, in contact with a being of light... A being is here from the realms of love and light and he has come at my beckoning to bring forth a message of Truth, Responsibility and the responsibility of the human beings here on Earth: ‘This is your battle – your battle against the dark forces that have been controlling for thousands upon thousands of years. Most people know nothing about this battle that has been going on, but you two know* about the battle, so I am going to share with you. [Cathy C. was present] ‘The battle is almost won... [but] we have farther to go, probably 2024 is going to bring about the revelations of what has happened for thousands and thousands of years on this planet Earth.

‘But Earth is now trying to do Her Ascension, and when the planets are lined up the way they are supposed to be – when Pluto is in Aquarius – things will move very fast at that time.

‘So hold on, do not go into fear, hold your light, be loving and kind, be compassionate to all beings, for God judges no one. God gives everyone opportunities to come back lifetime after lifetime until they get things right in this world.

‘But the world is going to be changed, you see it changing every day. But more and more Truth will be coming out as we go into 2023, especially in March, when Pluto [goes into] Aquarius.

‘Hold on, hold fast, be Peace, be Love and be the Light.

‘And that is my message for this year 2023. ‘God bless you, keep on. You’re going to make it!

‘And so it is and so shall it be, as God has willed!’ ” ■

Relationship Inspiration

The Golden Rule~ “Do unto others as you would have them do unto you...”

© by Faith Parrish

Submitted with permission to reprint.

Editor's note: Bringing human relationships into balance is one of the main lessons we need to learn here on Earth. Finding the humanity with each other, and making sure we support that which affirms our humanity will help us greatly in 2023.

You have Divine Consciousness with you in your relationship.

Angels are with you – assisting you – let them.

Use patience and understanding with each other.

Dream together and build your dreams together.

Steadfastly work towards the best for all concerned.

Remove dream stealers and time stealers from your lives.

Appreciate each other; you are doing the best you can for where you are.

Be compassionate and flexible in expectations for each other.

Ask the Divine for information on all issues – then expect it.

Seek and make quiet time together as often as possible.

Inspire each other with praise and understanding.

Remain hopeful and stay flexible and communicate often.

Support and empower each other.

Think and expect good things to happen.

Use wisdom in your thinking and expectations.

Love who you are and each other.

an aging malamute with arthritis, and myself. It was a human product line that was completely safe for pets too. ...

I was so impressed with the effects of the gold, that I called the number on the bottle one day after work to find out more. A man answered and told me he was the sole manufacturer of the colloidal product line. ... We talked for a while and, towards the end of the conversation, he invited me to drive down to visit his colloidal “operation.” ...

What is Colloidal Gold? ... Colloidal gold sold as a mineral supplement is typically a suspension of gold nanoparticles in distilled alkaline water [and range] within a 1-100 nanometer scale for a colloidal gold solution... These tiny gold particles ... penetrate through the cell membranes and relieve many clinical issues. ...

The Color of True Colloidal Gold The color of colloidal gold can vary from transparent yellow to transparent red/pink, depending on the concentration and size of the particles. Typically, colloidal gold in the most minute nanoparticle size appears ruby red ... and is 100% bio-accessible for the most significant viability.

Colloidal Gold Health Benefits

- ▲ Anti-Inflammatory
- ▲ Anti-Aging
- ▲ Promotes a calm and relaxed mental state
- ▲ Increases cognitive function, mental, physical, and energy performance.

The human body naturally produces trace amounts of gold – approximately 0.2 mg in the average adult. This naturally occurring gold* has been shown to help transmit electrical signals within the body, helping memory and focus. [*See segment following.]

- ▲ Reduces stress.
- ▲ Used to treat addiction.

- ▲ Improves blood circulation.
- ▲ Alleviates rheumatoid arthritis symptoms.
- ▲ Increases hand-eye coordination.
- ▲ Helps inflammatory skin conditions like rashes, eczema, blisters, and fungal infections.
- ▲ Improves the transmission of nerve impulses [e.g., many solid state computer connections have gold deposited on their surfaces as gold enhances electron flow and doesn't corrode].
- ▲ Improves the absorption of certain elements like magnesium, phosphorus, B vitamins, vitamin D, Vitamin A, and vitamin E.
- ▲ Supports burn and wound healing – Colloidal gold can promote cellular regeneration, which aids in the healing of wounds, burns, and deeper tissue damage. It has also been shown to have antibacterial properties, decreasing the risk of infection. Topical usage of CG may also help rashes and skin conditions such as eczema and mild forms of psoriasis.
- ▲ Heals the Skin – Colloidal gold is used internally and externally for skin cell initiation and restoration. Due to its soothing and rejuvenating properties, colloidal gold is often found in many skincare [products]. CG is known for its capacity to mend micro-damage for conditions like skin ulcers, sun damage, and hyperpigmentation (melasma) [and] is also said to help acne-scarred skin.

Glowing Skin Ruby red colloidal gold is a light-reflecting color known for its ability to light up the skin, causing it to look more radiant. You can put colloidal gold in a small spray bottle and spritz it generously on clean skin before applying moisturizer or makeup for a luminous glow effect. ... ▢

Is Gold Present in our Bodies?

© Jerry Seitz

Material from staminacomfort.com/is-gold-present-in-our-body. Abridged. Some modification, etc.

IT HAS BEEN DISCOVERED THAT THE ELEMENT GOLD PERFORMS A CRUCIAL HEALTH ROLE, assisting in the maintenance of our joints as well as the transmission of electrical signals throughout the body.

In fact, gold is one of the only metals that can actually help the human body release its stored calcium. This is important because when you become old or sick, your bones tend to pull away from their normal position inside your body and this can lead to problems with blood circulation and heart disease. Gold helps release the calcium so it can be passed on to the liver where it is recycled or removed from the body.

Also, gold is used by the body to build strong teeth and bone tissue. The cells that make up our bones are constantly dividing to replace themselves, and gold helps them do this more effectively by keeping them healthy and alive for longer. Similarly, the cells in our teeth also need to divide to form new, healthy tissue. Gold is again useful here because it prevents them from collapsing due to stress or age.

Finally, gold is used by the body to produce certain hormones. Studies have shown that women who drink gold tea (which we will discuss later in the article) have higher levels of estrogen which is good for maintaining healthy bones and teeth. ...

Where Gold in the Body Comes from Gold ... found in the human body [comes mainly through food and water] ... When you eat foods rich in gold such as some tropical fruits or vegetables, they are absorbed into your bloodstream through your gut lining. ... [Gold can also be absorbed from the air.] Every time you breathe in air, you ingest a few nanograms of gold. Airborne gold is [captured] in the mucus that lines your lungs. ... Humans also produce small quantities of gold internally. [Ed's: How is this accomplished I wonder?] ... According to John Emsley's technical book, The Elements, Third Edition [published by Clarendon Press, Oxford, 1998], the typical person's body weighing 70 kilos [154 lbs, approx.] would have a total mass of 0.2 milligrams of gold. The skin contains about 25 mcg/kg... The lungs contain about 15 mg, or 0.15 mmols, [micromoles] and the heart about 10 mg, or 0.1 mmole. ...

A healthy person's blood should not contain more than 0.01 ng/ml of gold. In addition to being found in the lungs, teeth, and urine, gold is also secreted into the saliva.

While the significance of gold in the physiological processes of the human body remained unclear for many years, it was recently discovered that gold has a part in both the health and maintenance of joints, as well as being a crucial factor in the transmission of electrical signals throughout the body. ...

▲ Gold has the highest malleability and ductility of any metal.

▲ Gold has the strongest corrosion resistance of any metal, and it can only be eroded by a solution of nitric and hydrochloric acid. [Ed's: "Aqua regia," a staple in the Alchemist's laboratory.]

Because gold does not oxidize, it is considered a noble metal.

Precious ... In and Out of the Body Gold, silver, platinum, and palladium are all precious metals found in the human body. Each of us has up to 0.2 milligrams of gold, the majority of which is present in the blood. We also have small amounts of silver, platinum, and palladium.

Precious metals are essential for many vital functions within the body [e.g.], used in the bloodstream for transporting oxygen to cells and removing carbon dioxide ... [also] required for proper bone development and repair. Finally, they are needed for healthy skin, hair, and nails. ■

Clusters composed of a few atoms tend to be spherical. They are usually organized in “shells” [quotes added] of atoms around a central atom. This is the case for many elements, but not for gold!

Experiments and advanced computations have shown that freestanding clusters of twenty gold atoms take on a pyramidal shape. They have a triangular ground plane made up of ten neatly arranged atoms, with additional triangles of six and three atoms, topped by a single atom [see figure on right].

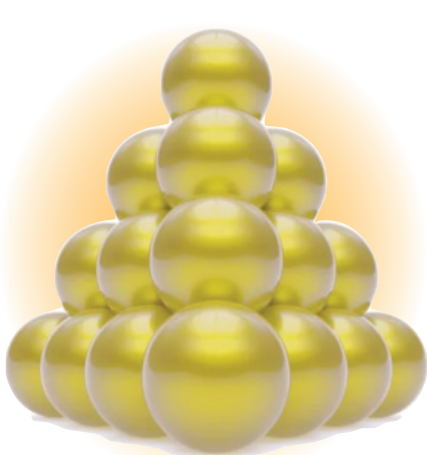

The remarkable tetrahedral structure has now been imaged for the first time with a scanning tunneling microscope. This high-tech microscope can visualize single atoms. It operates at extremely low temperatures (-269° below zero) and uses quantum tunneling of an electrical current from a sharp scanning metallic tip through the cluster and into the support. Quantum tunneling is a process where electrical current flows between two conductors without any physical contact between them. The researchers used intense plasmas in a complex vacuum chamber setup to sputter gold atoms from a macroscopic piece of gold.

Zhe Li, the main author of the paper, currently at the Harbin Inst. of Technology, Shenzhen:

Part of the sputtered atoms grow together to small particles of a few up to a few tens of atoms, due to a process comparable with condensation of water molecules to droplets... We selected a beam of clusters consisting of exactly twenty gold atoms. We landed these species with one of the triangular* facets onto a substrate covered with a very thin layer of kitchen salt (NaCl), precisely three atom layers thick.

Editor’s comment: Hmmm. Perhaps the selection of the tri-angular structure itself, and the 3 atom layers thick “informed” the gold atoms to array themselves in a 3-infused pyramidal structure – the 4th side being the base area. What do you think? ◇

The study also revealed the peculiar electronic structure of the small gold pyramid. Similar to noble gas atoms or aromatic molecules, the cluster only has completely filled electron orbitals,* which makes them much less reactive than clusters with one or a few atoms more or less.

Gold clusters ranging from a few to several dozens of atoms in size are known to possess remarkable properties. [Ed’s: More on these properties later.]

The new discovery helps scientists evaluate the catalytic and optical performances of these clusters, which is relevant for designing cluster-based catalysts and optical devices. Recent applications of clusters include utilization in fuel cells and carbon capture. ■

ARIES (MAR 20 – APR 19)

This year, embrace the best version of yourself and assert your authenticity with confidence. Jan. lights up your career sector (10th H). The full Moon of Jan. 6th is likely to bring up areas that need correcting on the home front (4th H). The Mars station direct on Jan. 12th helps you find an answer to a perplexing question or untangle a communication problem (3rd H). Set a new social agenda for yourself after the New Moon of Jan. 21st. Connect with old friends and make new beneficial relationships. The last 11 days of Feb. indicates a time for you to rest and relax, retreat and daydream (12th H).

TAURUS (APR 20 – MAY 20)

For 2023, Jupiter in Aries will give you gifts of inspired action and a sense of daring; then as it moves into your sign, a surge of creative energy. As Jan. begins, you are inspired to expand your life through study, travel, and/or teaching (9th H). The Full Moon of Jan. 6th may help clarify problems within your immediate family and/or communication issues. Create a better budget after Jan. 12th, as Mars stations direct. Power struggles with associates or family members try your patience around Feb. 5th, under the light of the Full Moon. Late Feb. is excellent for coalition and friendship building.

GEMINI (MAY 21 – JUN 20)

In 2023 identify and nurture your friendship circle with joy and confidence (Aries, 11 H). The Full Moon of Jan. 6th may bring a significant spiritual insight (12th H). You’ve probably had a lot of pent up anger since mid-Sept. (when Mars retrograded in your sign), but from Jan. 12th, when Mars goes direct, you’ll be more able to transmute past irritations into constructive action. Jan. highlights intimate relations as well as long-term financial picture (8th H). From Jan. 21st through Feb. 18th, expand your world through travel and learning (9th H). As Feb. ends apply your new knowledge to securing a stronger career path. A promotion may be in the offering, greater recognition or more responsibility (10 H).

CANCER (JUN 21 – JUL 22)

At the beginning of this year Jupiter in Aries lights up your career sector (10th H). Embrace a new path with greater confidence. Jan. is also your partnership time of the year when you identify the best and leave the rest. The Full Moon of Jan. 6th triggers positive ways to create stronger relationship ties through forgiveness and hopefully, empathy. Mars direct on Jan. 12th helps you to tap into new spiritual awareness. The New Moon of Jan. 21st helps you identify the right personal or financial goals for long term security. This theme extends through Feb. 18th. As Feb. ends you are inspired to take a trip, or at least an mental or spiritual adventure (9th H).

LEO (JUL 23 – AUG 22)

This year, develop your “best practices” for health and work (6th H). The Full Moon of Jan. 6th, taking place in your solar 12th H., indicates a time to pull back, and look within for answers. Don’t fear what may come up. With Jupiter’s presence in Aries, your 9th H., all areas of study, publishing, exploration will get a boost. The Mars station direct on Jan. 12th brings group activities back into focus. Use the Jan. 21st New Moon energies to set a new partnership agenda into motion. Relationships could deepen or end during as Feb. progresses. At the end of Feb. joint finances and intimate relationships (8th H) need attention.

VIRGO (AUG 23 – SEPT 20)

As Jan. unfolds, your play sector is activated (5th H), so it’s pleasure first! The Full Moon of Jan. 6th casts light on the kind of social network you have: does it serve your needs or doesn’t it? Focus on making sweeping changes in financial goals and more fulfilling intimacy as Jupiter transits Aries, your 8th H. Mars stationing direct on Jan. 12th should clear up cloudy career sector matters (10th H). At the New Moon of Jan. 21st, shift into work mode; look for ways to maximize productivity (6th H). The last week of Feb. the pendulum swings back to relationships (7th H). Open your sensitivity and compassion to significant others.

LIBRA (SEP 21 – OCT 20)

This year deepen connection and commitment to a significant partner for business or pleasure (Aries, 7th H). You are launching a new powerful relationship cycle. As Jan. unfolds it is time to make your dwelling a more attractive and functional place. Deeper family connections are also highlighted in January (4th H). The Full Moon of Jan. 6th brings clarity on these home-based issues. The Mars station direct on Jan. 12th allows backed up intellectual projects to move forward. The 21st through Feb. 18th, open your heart to fun, romance and creativity (Aquarius, 5th H). Late Feb. begins an empowered time of ambition and productivity (6th H).

SCORPIO (OCT 21 – NOV 20)

In 2023, complete work projects (Gemini, 6th H) with new inspiration, and that goes for implementing improvements in your health routine as well. Meanwhile, Jan. highlights learning, communication, and the exchange of ideas, goods, and services (3rd H). The Full Moon of Jan. 6th enhances your ability to speak your truth (9th H, Cancer). Jan. 12th, Mars stationing direct aids in this exchange. From Jan. 21st through Feb. 18th the energy shifts to home and family (Aquarius, 4th H). Strive to cultivate a stronger psychological foundation. As Feb. ends you prioritize fun, romance and creative pursuits (5th H).

SAGITTARIUS (NOV 21 – DEC 20)

The new year signals a time to cultivate joy through fun, romance and creativity (Aries, 5th H). Meanwhile, Jan. is a financial month (2nd H) for you featuring new ways of generating income. When Mars station direct., Jan. 12th, pent up issues regarding significant partners will step out of the shadows. From late Jan. through Feb. 18th, focus on enhanced communication skills (3rd H, Aquarius). The New Moon of Jan. 21st will illuminate opportunities to assert your truth. Exchanges of ideas are inspirational and uplifting. Late Feb. is your time to take care of family concerns (4th H, Pisces). Closer family ties can be achieved thanks to your wit and wisdom.

CAPRICORN (DEC 21 – JAN 19)

In 2023, stabilize home and family (4th H, Aries, Jupiter transiting). Meanwhile, Jan. favors you taking personal risks and embracing opportunities which highlight your leadership skills. The Full Moon of Jan. 6th provides you with feedback from a partner. Mars station direct on Jan. 12th allows for those “good intentions” regarding work and health to go forward. The New Moon of Jan. 21st launches a time for you to improve your income potential (2nd H). This financial focus extends towards Feb. 18th. The month’s focus is also on personal values and fortitude. Late Feb. is a time for communication, negotiation and organization (3rd H, Pisces).

AQUARIUS (JAN 20 – FEB 18)

For 2023, personal expression strengthens all aspects of your life (3rd H, Aries, Jupiter transiting). Meanwhile, Jan. prepares you for the exciting year ahead through enhanced prayer, meditation, and retreat. The Full Moon of Jan. 6th shows up neglected areas in you health/work sector (6th H, Cancer). Jan. 12th, Mars stationing direct should help bring back a sense of fun (5th H, Gemini). Resolve to balance differences by the New Moon of Jan. 21st. Late Feb. emphasizes personal values and income enhancement (2nd H, Pisces).

PISCES (FEB 19 – MAR 21)

2023 is a year of financial abundance for you (2nd H, Aries, Jupiter transiting). Meanwhile, Jan. represents a more social time. Identify the friends you can count on around the Full Moon of Jan. 6th. The pursuit of spiritual goals gets a kick start after the New Moon of Jan. 21st. Observe your dreams for inner messages as well. As the sun enters your sign in late Feb. you’ll feel more confident and project a stronger persona. Others will recognize your powerful compassionate gifts. A heads up: on Mar. 7th, Saturn, the “Task Master” enters your sign, so keep your values, prerogatives and virtues clear. Turn your intuitive skills into an income stream. ■

lectivity and inclusivity. [Ed’s: And or, mob action; a hyper-group thinking that demands loyalty to its basic premises or goals – with social costs of violating them, being excluded from the group.]

Bureaucracy, and Plutocracy are systems to be replaced by a more evenly distributed power base as represented by Aquarius. The last time Pluto transited Aquarius was during the late 18th century, from 1778 to 1798. Enormous social and political upheaval occurred then; the American, and French revolutions, plus revolt against monarchies, and ‘top-down’ power worldwide. This revolutionary spirit will prevail from 2023 through 2043, as the volcanic purge of Pluto sweeps through Aquarius. The foreshadowing of this important cycle occurs from Mar. 23rd through June 10th of 2023, when it will retrograde back into Capricorn. From June 11th through the remainder of the year the last gasps of Pluto’s ... power in Capricorn will occur.

Saturn transits repeat approximately every 30 years. This upcoming year will usher in a new two- and half-year cycle of Saturn in Pisces*. Saturn is the energy of structure, reality and responsibility. Wherever it touches it strengthens [by finding and correcting flaws], through the qualities of commitment and discipline. March 7th is the date of the Saturn ingress in the ethereal, spiritual, idealistic energy of Pisces. What might we expect? Think of Saturn as the being the mechanism of grounding Spirit like capturing Sunlight in a bottle. The Saturn ingress in Pisces will likely result in a resurgence of interest in religion and spirituality.

Editor’s note: Formlessness (Pisces) vs Crystallization (Saturn). Flaws in the psychic world and religious institutions will be revealed. Those with a natal Saturn in Pisces, though very sensitive themselves, are very adept at exploiting the weaknesses of others, so be wary of those who try to manipulate the beliefs and ideals of others for personal gain or simply to exert the power of Chaos. As a dual sign, one aspect of this transit will be willingly sacrifice for the greater good, or exploitation and dark magic. ◇

Jupiter enters Taurus on May 15th, inviting us to heal the fears associated with resources and survival that was stirred up by the 2022 nodes in Scorpio/Taurus. The Scorpio/Taurus polarity highlights the balance between Taurus [matter-form] and Scorpio [trans-form-ation]. When Jupiter – the energy of expansion – transits Taurus [starting on May 17] we will be motivated to engage as wise stewards of our personal and planetary resources. Since 2018, the Uranus transit in Taurus has emphasized the health of our shared resources, the gifts of the planet. Jupiter in Taurus will expand this urge in 2023, creating opportunities to stabilize both heal the planet and stabilize the world economy.

2023 offers each of us opportunities to play a bigger role in the larger world landscape. Whether this be within our homes, communities, or connecting with the world at large via the “world wide web.” Shifting away from the Pluto in Capricorn will be a relief as we navigate the new inspirational energies of Aquarius reflecting a world of infinite possibilities. ■

Editor’s postscript: For those familiar with their horoscope, check out the natal houses that Aries and Taurus occupy. Those will be the primary stages where these changes will likely be most felt. Also, consider your progressed chart as well. Self-knowledge is crucial for anyone on a spiritual path.

2022-2023 Woolly Bear Catepillar Winter Prediction (??!)

Material obtained from exploreohiooutdoors.com/woolly-bear-weather-prediction-2022-2023. Excerpt reprinted as “fair use.” Edited for brevity, clarity and/or flow.

The caterpillar pictured directly above has 13* segments, 8 are black and 5 are brown. There are 5 dark stripes on the front end of the caterpillar and 3 on the rear. Last year, we had a 4/6/3 ratio. So, this year the beginning will be worse, the middle not as mild, and the end about the same.*

Many of the Woolly Bear caterpillars we have seen this fall have dense hair. This is an indication the winter will be cold.

Conclusion So, does the coloring of the woolly bear caterpillar change due to their diet or the upcoming winter? I guess we will have to wait to find out. ■

 Editor’s note

The number 13 often appears in nature, especially in relation to animals. For example, turtles have 13 plates – a sure indication of the 13 moons during a Sun-Moon cycle. Anyway, based on my own observations, the New Moon in a sign “starts” the weather associated with that sign. Example: The New Moon in Capricorn (Winter Solstice, start of Winter) occurred on Dec. 23, 2022. And, coming up, the “dead of winter,” in Aquarius, starts on Jan. 21, 2023 this year and should bring up the coldest winter weather. Anyway, I allow that the woolies gave us a “heads up” on the rest of the winter. Good to pay attention, though, and see how it goes. ◇

What color is that star really? Here’s an old astronomer’s trick to find out. To make the color of a star really pop, tap your telescope. The resulting smear of light will look extra colorful [because there’s more of the color to see].

Editor’s comment: This technique reminds me of an artist putting a big gob of paint on his pallet and “smearing” it out to get a better idea of the strength of a given color.

Amateur astronomer Paolo Palma of Naples, Italy, tried this for 14 bright stars [see above graphic]: “Here is a mosaic of the colors of the brightest stars visible from Italy,” says Palma. “I took them during this year by deliberately shocking the telescope. As the Italian poet Filippo Zamboni said, in this way the colors of the stars seem to come out of nowhere!” Turns out it’s an old poet’s trick, too.

“The photographic parameters are the same for all shots and they have not undergone any extra processing to enhance their colors,” he adds.

Stars have different colors because they are different temperatures. The hottest stars are blue, with temperatures around 25,000 K. Red is the color of the coldest stars, which have surface temperatures of approximately 3,000 K. Palma captured almost the entire range.

Editor’s note: Paolo Palma also made that amazing star mosaic that I included in the Nov/Dec 22 Pathfinder. This fellow has both scientific and artistic instincts. Nice job, Paolo!

Spiritual teachings flowing from East to West

Paramahansa Yogananda ✨

Paramhansa Yogananda, b. Jan. 5, 1893, Gorakhpur, India, 8:59 PM, LMT (*See note below regarding time correction.)

*born Mukunda Lal Ghosh
Material from astro.com

(Gorakhpur is on Madras time. As it is 3 degrees 7 min east of Madras, the correction of Gorakhpur to Madras is 12 min 28 sec plus, making the time 20:50 LMT. If the LMT correction had already been made, the original Madras time would have been 20:26 LMT. We are perhaps safest in assuming that the time as given is LMT.)*

From yogapedia.com: Mukunda's Hindu honorific parama: "enlightenment, or the supreme state of moksha. The term comes from the Sanskrit roots parama, meaning "supreme" or "transcendent," and hansa, meaning "swan" or "wild goose." It is typically translated to mean "supreme swan."*

Material obtained from above site. Excerpt reprinted as "fair use." Retitled. Abridged. Edited for brevity, clarity, and/or flow. Editor's comments, etc., in square brackets. References omitted.

East Indian author, mystic and founder of the Self-Realization Fellowship. World traveled and a world teacher, Paramhansa Yogananda carried Eastern philosophy to the West.

He was born Mukunda Lal Ghosh to a devout and well-to-do Bengali family. During childhood, Yogananda had vivid memories of being a yogi during previous lifetimes in the Himalayas. A spiritually precocious child, he was encouraged toward the religious calling by his mother, and he met many holy men and yogis who aided him along his path.

In 1910, at age 17, he met the revered Swami Sri Yukteswar Giri, whom he had often seen during his meditations, and the recognition, joy, and empathy between Master and disciple was immediate and joyful. He completed his studies at Calcutta University while being taught spiritual discipline by his guru for close to a decade, in the Indian tradition. In 1915, he took formal vows as a monk of India's venerable monastic Swami Order, at which time he received the name Yogananda.

A natural born teacher, in 1917, he founded a "how-to-live" school for boys, where modern educational methods were combined with yoga training and instruction in spiritual ideals. His curriculum was always more concerned with developing the whole individual rather than only the intellect. He joked that having renounced the life of a family man, he ended up with even more children than he might have fathered.

In 1920, he was invited to serve as India's delegate to an international congress of religious leaders convening in Boston. His address to the congress, on "The Science of Religion," was enthusiastically received. When Yogananda arrived in America on Sep. 20, 1920, the "New World" was ready to receive the advanced teachings that had previously been reserved for monastics and chelas* in ashrams. Science, literacy, communication, and new spiritual insights had just begun breaking down the dark ages of theology and dogma. He founded his fellowship to disseminate worldwide his teachings on India's ancient science and philosophy of Yoga and its time-honored tradition of meditation, introducing the Bhagavad Gita and other scriptures to help raise the consciousness of humanity.

[*From yogapedia.com: Chela is the Sanskrit term for a person who follows a guru and means "one who is eager to learn" ... synonymous with disciple ... includes a relationship with the guru, which is especially sacred and significant. [Ed's: There are parallels within Catholicism and other versions of Christianity.]

Yogananda lectured and taught on the East coast of American for several years and in 1924 began a speaking tour across the country. [He spoke of the underlying unity of the world's great religions in his lectures which were attended by thousands drawn to his message.] ...

Yogananda's articulate and sincere introduction to the disciplines of the East opened the door for many other Indian teachers and gurus, as a serious interest in yoga and meditation made great inroads in the West. His main mission was to build a lasting bridge of World Brotherhood based on raising the spiritual awareness between the East and West.

In 1925, he established an international headquarters for Self-Realization Fellowship in Los Angeles. His writing began to increase in the '30s, including a series of lessons for home study. In 1935, Yogananda toured Europe for six months and India for a year, meeting Mahatma Gandhi and other renowned spiritual figures. At this time his own guru, Swami Sri Yukteswar, bestowed on him India's highest spiritual title, Paramahansa (supreme swan). ...

His life story, "Autobiography of a Yogi," 1946, [is] a perennial bestseller ... in continuous publication since it first appeared and has been translated into 18 languages. It is widely regarded as a modern spiritual classic.

See "Paramhansa Yogananda," cont. to pg. 18

"Millions of people never analyze themselves. Mentally they are mechanical products of the factory of their environment, preoccupied with breakfast, lunch, and dinner, working and sleeping, and going here and there to be entertained. They don't know what or why they are seeking, nor why they never realize complete happiness and lasting satisfaction. By evading self-analysis, people go on being robots, conditioned by their environment. True self-analysis is the greatest art of progress."

"Don't depend on death to liberate you from your imperfections. ... Whatever you have made of yourself thus far, so will you be hereafter. And when you reincarnate, you will bring that same nature with you. To change, you have to make the effort. This world is the place to do it."

"You may control a mad elephant; you may shut the mouth of the bear and the tiger; ride the lion and play with the cobra; by alchemy you may learn your livelihood; you may wander through the universe incognito; make vassals of the gods; be ever youthful; you may walk in water and live in fire; but control of the mind is better and more difficult."

Trans-Neptune and Other Point Symbols (See symbols on pg 15)

Other symbols appear in the charts above, e.g., the Centaur group between Jupiter and Neptune, presumed to have originated in the Kuiper Belt. Major ones are Pholus, Nessus, Chariklo. Some "plutoids" are often used in chart analysis, with orbital periods so long, that unless they contact an angle or natal planet, their impact is likely to be mainly unconscious – or perhaps, "pre-conscious," e.g., Eris, Makemake, Haumea. Try to match the symbols with their names. Points include the Vertex (like a "V" with an "x" at the bottom); Earth, a circle with an upright cross; Part of Fortune, a "X" in a circle, and the Black Moon Lilith, reverse black crescent above a cross, associated with unbounded emotion (the nature of which will depend upon the sign it appears in). Information on the Centaurs, so named, stem from the first of them discovered in 1977, subsequently named Chiron. The Greek tale of what happened between Heracles and the Centaurs gives many insights to taboo / unleashed impulses and areas of emotional wounding arising from them along with their collection of consequences. Be that as it may, the group of asteroids between Saturn-Neptune has proven to be a fruitful area for Archetypal astrology, from Chiron on out.

Centaur Primer

The material on some of the outer bodies, and several named Centaurs below is from TimePassages, and most glyphs.

Chariklo ... was a sea nymph and Chiron's wife and mother of Tiresias, the blind seer. Astronomically, the orbital period for Chariklo is around 62 years. Her orbit ranges between Saturn and Uranus but doesn't intersect Saturn's orbit (unlike that of Chiron). The astrological archetype of Chariklo seems to represent individuals who are able to see the unknown more readily. She is prominent in the charts of inventors and science fiction authors. She represents turning toward the mystical and forging an opening to the numinous unknown. Where Chariklo is found in the natal chart may represent a place of wisdom that transcends the boundaries of the natural world, a place where you must 'close your eyes to see'.

Makemake ... the second "new" [quotes added] planet, or dwarf planet, or 'plutoid', to be officially named... The period of MakeMake is 310 years The official name refers to the creation god of Easter Island, or Rapa Nui. In size somewhat smaller than either Pluto or Eris... [Makemake] is the creation god of Rapa Nui, MakeMake symbolizes a connection with environmental [lessons learned the hard way]. Where he is found in charts there can be found also the wisdom of the earth and the capacity for spiritual renewal.

Haumea ... The third trans-Neptunian Object, or TNO, to be officially designated as a dwarf planet, after Eris and MakeMake, Haumea was discovered just after Christmas 2004 (discoverer Mike Brown). Its discovery was officially announced on July 29th, 2005, by his group. Haumea is different from other TNOs in that it is rocky, as befits a goddess of the earth, and rotating extremely rapidly – a revolution every 4 hours. As a result, its shape is elongated, like a small cigar [or an elongated egg]. Its orbital period is 283 years. Creation goddess of the islands of Hawaii, Haumea was the source of many gods and goddesses as well as of the race of humankind. Pele, Hi'iaka, Namaka, Laka and many others... Her skill at childbirth is recounted in countless stories. Children sprang from different parts of her body...

Chiron (Has something over a 50-year orbit; NASA's site: 50.39 years. The "39" years is approximately 4 months) I've included quite a bit about Chiron in previous Pathfinders, so will simply say that although characterized by the astrological community as "the wounded healer," often missed is the character of the wound Chiron received: he was an immortal, being a son of Zeus, so when he was hit by one of Heracles' poisoned arrows he didn't die, but his wound never healed. (He received a poison arrow shot when Heracles tried to put down that drunken Centaur bacchanal.) His energy shows up in an area of life that won't be healed, but must just be tolerated, and where we surrender to the fact of our being wounded.

Eris (Goddess of Strife and Discord) This Goddess planetoid, about the size of Pluto, has roughly twice Pluto's orbital period (557 years to about 250 years for Pluto). Her energy is to upend established relationships, tradition and "the way things were." One way to deal with Her energy is to acknowledge the disruption and find ways to work with it or around it – taking advantage of chaotic circumstances to seek a better order. Eris definitely doesn't want to be left out of things – like that evil fairy who wasn't invited to Sleeping Beauty's christening and so cursed the beautiful child. We are called upon to undo that curse with appropriate work-arounds (like the other 11 fairies at Sleeping Beauty's christening).

Lilith* ... Black Moon Lilith represents the apogee of the lunar orbit, where it lies farthest from the earth. This mystical astrological point cycles once around the chart every nine years... [Although there is an asteroid with the same name as well as an unverified "second moon" of Earth] Black Moon Lilith has been the most typically used in modern Western Astrology. Lilith represents an important piece of the feminine that has been lost or shunned in modern patriarchal society. She was worshipped in ancient Babylonia as the handmaiden of Innana and also viewed with distrust as the archetype of wild and uncontrolled sexuality. She is identified in Hebrew mythology as the first and rejected wife of Adam, who found [independent].

Nessus has an orbital period of 122 1/2 years. Just as the orbit of Nessus links Saturn with Pluto. The mythology of Nessus partakes of some of the same elements as the other Centaur stories, including painful death. When Nessus was ferrying Hercules' bride, Deianeira, across a river, he tried to rape her and so Hercules shot him through the heart with a poisoned arrow... Nessus represents those powerful and instinctual urges, those "unredeemed" impulses that seek to satisfy their own appetites (and lusts) at the expense of any self-restraint.

Pholus was discovered on Jan. 9, 1992 and termed a Centaur, the second of a class of small objects with eccentric orbits beyond the path of Saturn. Pholus is red in color and has an orbital period of 92 years. The orbit of Pholus links Saturn and Neptune. Pholus suffered a fatal wounding from the poison arrows of Hercules, after a fracas in which the wine he was entrusted with was inadvertently opened to please Hercules. Pholus sacrificed himself for the greater good, a Neptunian theme... There is also the motif of intoxication, which might be expected from the link between Saturn [practical reality], and Neptune [numinous, out-of-this-world experience.]

[HOOVER] REMAINED A BACHELOR, BUT SINCE 1928 HAD A CLOSE COMPANION, CLYDE TOLSON, FIVE YEARS HOOVER'S JUNIOR AND ONE OF HIS CLOSEST AIDES (who was born May 22, 1900). Much of the inside information about Hoover's personal activities and 'hidden' power was revealed in 1972, the year Hoover died, and later.

◆ Jack Anderson of the Washington Post, one of the rare reporters who testified of FBI corruption, told a congressional committee that "the FBI chief has demonstrated an intense interest in who is sleeping with whom in Washington" and "conducts secret investigations of prominent Americans."

◆ "Citizen Hoover," by Jay Robert Nash, was a savage critique of Hoover's entire career, describing him as "benefactor and bully, protector and oppressor, truth-giver and liar."

◆ "John Edgar Hoover" by Hank Messick linked Hoover's relationship with organized crime.

◆ In 1991, Curt Gentry wrote "J. Edgar Hoover, The Man and the Secrets." a well-researched study of the man who ran the [FBI for nearly 50 years]. In this book, Gentry describes a man who was obsessed with others' sexuality, having an endless hate list with Blacks and Jews at the top, having inside knowledge of the Mafia's plan to kill the Kennedy's, and never associating with anyone socially unless he had harmful information on them. This routine blackmail by Hoover included thousands of illegal wire-taps, bugs, mail-openings and burglaries used to extort loyalty from – or ruin – politicians and various entertainers. – As for the eight presidents Hoover served under, some wanted to fire him but dared not because, as Richard Nixon said on the White House tapes: "He's got files on everybody, God damn it!"

◆ Anthony Summers' best-seller, "Official and Confidential: The Secret Life of J. Edgar Hoover" re-affirmed Hoover's use of secret files to manipulate politicians, especially the Kennedy brothers. He was ruthless with his detractors, and so his power and public identification with the nation's top civil servant in combating crime was never toppled while he was in office. ...□

EDGAR HOOVER WAS A DEVOTED FREEMASON, BEING RAISED A MASTER MASON ON NOV. 9, 1920, IN FEDERAL LODGE NO. 1, WASHINGTON, DC, just two months before his 26th birthday. During his 52 years with the Masons, he received many medals, awards and decorations. [In] 1955, he was coroneted a 33rd Degree Inspector General Honorary in the Southern Scottish Rite Jurisdiction [and] was also awarded the Scottish Rite's highest recognition, the Grand Cross of Honour, in 1965. ■

A renowned Baptist minister and compelling orator, Civil Rights activist (and martyr) who marched against segregation, eventually taking on the Vietnam War and the plight of the poor.

American clergyman and inspirational leader of the civil rights movement. A symbol of the struggle against black segregation in the American South, he won the Kennedy Peace Prize and the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964. Galvanizing black Americans into action through his electrifying oratory skills, he rose to become a legend and national hero in his own time.

Growing up in a pious, proud and progressive black community in segregated Atlanta, King was the son of Alberta and Martin Luther King, a Baptist minister at the Ebenezer Baptist Church. Living in a family of black Brahmins he never experienced poverty, yet he continuously heard his father preach from his pulpit, "I don't care how long I have to live with this system. I will never accept it."

Early On... King's rhetorical ability showed early. A pastor's son of whom much was expected, he won an oratorical contest sponsored by the Black Elks* in 1944. [*A benevolent, non-profit fraternal association founded in 1868.] Programmed from his early youth to follow in his father's and grandfather's footsteps in the ministry, by his teens he was uncomfortable with the emotionalism of fundamental Baptist services and sought a more liberal perspective. Enrolling in Morehouse College in Atlanta, he vacillated between choosing a career as a doctor or a lawyer...

With his spiritual perspective enhanced by the liberal theologians at Morehouse, he enrolled at Crozer Theological Seminary in Penn. where he was one of 11 blacks in a student population of 90. Manifesting his innate sense of leadership, he became student body president and class valedictorian. He was ordained a minister in his father's church in 1947. Upon applying to Boston Univ. for graduate work, his professors wrote "His work is of the highest grade" and "He will probably become a big, strong leader among his people."

In 1955 at age 26, [he rejected stepping into] his father's pulpit at Ebenezer Baptist in Atlanta. King's first position was at the prestigious Dexter Baptist Church at Montgomery, Alabama. When seamstress [Rosa] Parks refused to move to the back of the bus on Dec. 1st of that same year, King began his sermon to a church full of agitated supporters of her cause, four days after her courageous act.

"You know my friends, there comes a time when people get tired of being trampled over by the iron feet of oppression."

Individual cheers gave way to a resounding din within the church walls and King walked into history that day as the delegated spokesman for the Montgomery Bus Boycott.

When the Montgomery buses finally began to operate on a non-segregated basis 381 days later, King formed the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, giving

“[The Internet of Bodies is described] as devices with computing capabilities that can communicate with internet-connected devices or networks that collect person-generated health and biometric data and/or can alter the function of the human body. — The WEF ... described it as an ecosystem of ‘an unprecedented number of sensors,’ including emotional sensors, ‘attached to, implanted within, or ingested into human bodies to monitor, analyze and ... modify human bodies and behavior.’”

one of the greatest challenges they face will be what to do with all the people who will become obsolete in the process.] The answer, Harari proposed, may lie in “a combination of drugs and computer games.”

COVID Jabs Served their Purpose I believe the depopulation requirement of the transhumanist [dystopia] is why just about every nation on the planet is refusing to address the extraordinary lethality of the COVID jabs. – Disability and life insurance claims have skyrocketed. Birth rates have plummeted and miscarriages and excess mortality are through the roof... It appears these effects are intentional, and the only way to make sense of this chilling reality is to understand that depopulation is a necessary element of the transhumanist agenda. ...

The Great Deception Those who have looked into transhumanism and The Great Reset can clearly see how just about everything that [is happening] is part of a plan to manipulate the masses to accept their envisioned control system. ...

In the [featured video], Max Igan of “The Crowhouse” reviews the history of the Great Deception we’re in – [the how and why people have been manipulated for decades, shaping behavior to allow globalists to slowly and quietly move their long-term agenda for global domination along.]

Editor’s comment: Reject the “poison apple,” put out there for you to grab, being brought to you so “conveniently.”

The Internet of Bodies The Rand Corporation [doing big business with the DOD for decades] defines IoB as devices with computing capabilities that can communicate with internet-connected devices or networks that collect person-generated health and biometric data and/or can alter the function of the human body.

The WEF has described it as an ecosystem of “an unprecedented number of sensors,” including emotional sensors, “attached to, implanted within, or ingested into human bodies to monitor, analyze and ... modify human bodies and behavior.” [Who’ll be doing the monitoring?] ... I think we can safely assume that it will be those who have something to gain from controlling other people’s actions and behaviors.

FDA Poised to Approve Implantable Biosensor While all of this sounds like pure sci-fi, the US Pentagon and Profusa Inc. have already developed an implantable biosensor that tracks chemical reactions inside your body, *ostensibly to detect disease.

Editor’s comment: Yeah, “detect disease.” What DoD junk talk! I guess they do think we’re all really stupid and gullible. Most people apparently are (otherwise we would be closer to our “promised land” and a better world), so they think they’re safe in trying to “pull the wool over our eyes.” Sure would like to know how many Satanists there are in the “Pentagon.” From various books by researchers like Jim Marrs and Len Kasten, all branches of the Armed Services are riddled with these treasonous blots at the top rungs. ♦

As explained by Defense One, the biosensor consists of two parts:

One is a 3 mm string of hydrogel ... Inserted under the skin with a syringe, the string includes a specially engineered molecule that sends a fluorescent signal outside of the body when the body begins to fight an infection.

The other part is an electronic component attached to the skin. It sends light through the skin, detects the fluorescent signal and generates another signal that the wearer can send to a doctor, website, etc. It’s like a blood lab on the skin that can pick up the body’s response to illness before the presence of other symptoms, like coughing.

The sensor allows a person’s biology to be examined at a distance via smartphone connectivity, and Profusa is backed by Google, the largest data mining company in the world ... Profusa was expecting to receive approval from the US Food and Drug Administration in 2021, but it doesn’t appear to have been approved yet. ...

IoB Inseparable from Transhumanist Agenda We cannot think about the IoB [as] separate from the eugenicist transhumanist Great Reset. The powers pushing the IoB forward are the same ones pushing for The Great Reset. ... [The future they are putting forward will be shaped by AI, programmed by those who stand to gain sitting on the top of the pile in a post-human society.]

Reject the IoB [or lose your humanity] ... All this convenience will land us in a digital prison. It’s worth noting that if you give up your freedom, you also relinquish your ability to protect those you love. Your children can be taken from you if you disobey.* Your spouse or parents can be injured or killed and you have no say in the matter. ...

*Editor’s note: There are now many examples of medical kidnapping for parents’ refusal to have their child jabbed to conform to obvious and rampant tyranny. ♦

The march toward CBDCs in the US has started. [Recently] the Federal Reserve Bank of New York’s Innovation Center, or NYIC, announced the launch of a 12-week proof-of-concept pilot for a central bank digital currency, or CBDC. ... It’s important to realize that we will lose everything worth living for if we continue down this path ... ■

Editor’s postscript: We must yank the momentum back and use our power to dismantle all these monsters and their schemes before they invite us into the disintegration chamber. ♦

“Father of Yoga in the West”

PARAMAHANSA YOGANANDA, IS OFTEN CALLED THE FATHER OF YOGA IN THE WEST ... I call Yogananda a Christo-Hindu sage and saint. The article focuses on the two most important books written by Yogananda: Autobiography of a Yogi and The Second Coming of Christ, which I call the Bible of Christo-Hinduism. I also try to place Yogananda’s life, work and spiritual legacy within the larger context of early 20th century America. ...

When it comes to building a spiritual bridge between his native Hinduism and Christianity, there is an individual whose influence was far more enduring and profound, yet who usually falls under the radar of those covering the Christo-Hindu interface: Paramahansa Yogananda...

Christo-Hinduism... is a term I have coined to describe a body of spiritual teachings to build a bridge between East and West by elucidating the common ground between Hinduism and Christianity. ... Christo-Hinduism resulted when the flow of religious teachings went from East to West. One of the best-known examples of Christo-Hindu teachings was when Sri Ramakrishna, undertook [to examine] Christianity and Jesus Christ from his Hindu perspective. ...

The spiritual keys to this interface or affinity lie in the doctrines or concepts of Monism, in which all lesser deities with name and form are particularized manifestations of a single, transcendent God of All, who is beyond all name and form...

The concept of a divine Incarnation

him a sound base from which to operate his vast congregation of everyday soldiers for civil rights. His philosophy of passive resistance* led to his frequent arrests and tours through the Bible Belt, where he became known as “Alabama’s Modern Moses.” ... His greatest coup was the March on Washington on Aug. 28, 1963, where 200,000 people gathered to demand their civil rights and hear King make his famous speech, “I have a dream...” For [his views] he was stoned, physically attacked and his house was bombed. ...[*Eds: Demonstrated earlier in the century by Mahatma Gandhi, and his famous “Salt March.”]

As society grew more militant in the mid-60’s, King’s interests widened to the Viet Nam War and those living in poverty. His plans for a Poor People’s March on Washington in 1968 were interrupted by a sanitation workers’ strike in Memphis, Tenn. On the evening of April 3, 1968, King delivered his legendary speech to supporters at the Mason Street Temple: “I have been to the mountaintop... I see the Promised Land. I may not get there with you, but mine eyes have seen the glory.”*

of God is called an Avatar, or “One Who Descends” in Hindu terminology. In an attempt to forge common ground between his native Hinduism and Christianity, Yogananda called his own line of gurus “Yogi-Christs of modern India.” ...

In Christianity, the Monistic idea is expressed mainly in terms of the Holy Trinity, or its triune conception of the Godhead, in which a single, transcendent Supreme Being manifests in three different persons: God the Father, or God Transcendent; God the Son, or God Immanent; and God the Holy Spirit, or God in Action. [In Hinduism’s Trinity, we have Brahma the Creator, Vishnu the Preserver, and Shiva the Destroyer or Transformer. Hinduism then branches out into myriad gods and goddesses – all various aspects of the One Divine Beingness].

Excerpt from “Autobiography of a Yogi”

My Mother’s Death and the Mystical Amulet – [As a young boy, Yogananda was totally attached to his loving mother, and was ... devastated by his mother’s tragic and untimely death when he was only 11. His mother and father were both devotees of Labiri Mahasaya, a guru in Yogananda’s Kriya Yoga lineage.]*

*Kriya refers to a set of practices, mainly breath control techniques and exercises, that are practiced to achieve a specific outcome. The word is a Sanskrit term that means “completed action.”

A stranger appeared at his mother’s door, and told her to meditate that evening, and a mystical amulet would magically appear in her hand. She gave it to Yogananda for his safe keeping, and on the day that the amulet finally disappeared – that was the day that Yogananda magically met his guru, Sri Yukteswar. ■

“I have been to the mountaintop... I see the Promised Land. I may not get there with you, but mine eyes have seen the glory.”

in Memphis, he was shot to death at 6:01 pm EST by allegedly lone assassin James Earl Ray. King married Coretta Scott in 1957. They had four children, Yolanda Denise, Martin Luther King III, Dexter and Bernice Albertine. ■

*Editor’s note: This was a chillingly stirring speech. Hearing it, you knew that he knew something terrible was about to happen. Apr. 3, 1968 was just a few years shy of 100 years after the Civil War (Apr. 9, 1865, to Apr. 15, 1861) hateful bigotry still boiled. Or was this more of the Cabal’s work to “keep fear and loathing alive”? Perhaps. — A mind-blowing 750,000 people died in the American Civil War, with about an equal number of wounded. Then came the “carpet bagger/bankers’ takeover,” which amounted to a wholesale transfer of Southern wealth, land, etc. to those emigrating from the North and, of course, bankers. Northern politicians and their policies treated the South like a conquered nation, e.g., imposing terrible reparations in the form of land theft, and so on resulting in deep, unhealed resentments still active today. ♦
